GROUND ONE:

Violation of Fourth Amendment Rights: Unlawful detention

- (a) Supporting facts (Do not argue or cite law. Just state the specific facts that support your claim.):

Steinberg has adhered to all of the rules of his probation since he became a probationer on December 16, 2010. On September 1, 2011 when Steinberg made his first and only trip to the United States entering at the Fort Lauderdale, Fl. airport from his home in Costa Rica, he was detained in immigration for a period of time. Upon presenting his US passport and customs slip to the immigration check -counter officer he was informed that the computer was showing that Steinberg was on probation. Steinberg was taken to another area of immigration by another immigration officer who searched Steinberg's bags and questioned Steinberg while the Department of Justice was contacted who, after a lengthy delay, eventually gave immigration clearance to allow Steinberg to proceed in his travel. Steinberg's court judgment of December 16, 2010 states that, "defendant shall be allowed "unrestricted" travel outside Costa Rica while on probation." The government's posting of Steinberg's probation status on an immigration computer, devoid of any accompanying explanatory comments or instructions, (which required an assenting response from another governmental enforcement agency), served only to detain, delay, and restrict Steinberg's travel which is in direct contravention to what the government agreed to and what the court decreed in its judgment of December 16, 2010. Even the probation officer was puzzled by the occurrence. (See attached). Wherefore, Steinberg prays that the court vacate the sentence.

GROUND TWO:

Violation of Fourth Amendment Rights: Illegal search

(a) Supporting facts (Do not argue or cite law. Just state the specific facts that support your claim.):

On September 1, 2011 when Steinberg arrived at the Fort Lauderdale, FL. airport from his home in Costa Rica he was detained in immigration. When Steinberg presented his US passport to the immigration check-counter officer he was informed that the computer was showing that Steinberg was on probation. Although Steinberg is aware that he gives up some degree of right to privacy in customs because all people who are immigrating into a border point are subject to random searches, the search performed on Steinberg's bags was not done at the usual check out location after travelers retrieve their luggage in customs. It was done in a restricted area of immigration that Steinberg was whisked to by an immigration officer. The search was done under an aura of an arrest setting while Steinberg was being questioned and the Department of Justice had to be contacted. Paragraph 10 of Steinberg's probation agreement specifies that searches done for reasons of compliance of probation are permitted only by a probation officer and are limited to contraband observed in plain view. Steinberg contends that the only reason he was searched at Fort Lauderdale airport was because the government posted his probation status on the immigration computer, which elicited the search, and not because he was randomly singled out by the check-counter officer for a "routine" search usually done before exiting customs. Wherefore, Steinberg prays that the court vacate the sentence.

13. Is there any ground in this motion that you have not previously presented in some federal court?

18. TIMELINESS OF MOTION: If your judgment of conviction became final over one year ago, you must explain why the one-year statute of limitations as contained in 28 U.S.C. § 2255 does not bar your motion.*

The limitation on this motion should run one year from September 1, 2011 which is the date that facts supporting this claim could have been discovered by Steinberg through the exercise of due diligence. It would have been impossible for Steinberg to be aware of the probation status posted by the government on the immigration computers prior to Steinberg entering the United States during the probation period. Steinberg is still in federal custody.

* The Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 ("AEDPA") as contained in 28 U.S.C. § 2255, paragraph 6, provides in part that:

A one-year period of limitation shall apply to a motion under this section. The limitation period shall run from the latest of —

- (1) the date on which the judgment of conviction became final;
- (2) the date on which the impediment to making a motion created by governmental action in violation of the Constitution or laws of the United States is removed, if the movant was prevented from making such a motion by such governmental action;
- (3) the date on which the right asserted was initially recognized by the Supreme Court, if that right has been newly recognized by the Supreme Court and made retroactively applicable to cases on collateral review; or
- (4) the date on which the facts supporting the claim or claims presented could have been discovered through the exercise of due diligence.

Therefore, movant asks that the Court grant the following relief:

Vacate the Sentence

or any other relief to which movant may be entitled.
